REV. DR. GRAMMER'S ELOQUENT REMARKS. Rev. Dr.Grammer of the Episcopal Church of Baltimore then made an eloquent and scholarly speech on the theme of "Learning and Theology," which held the rapt attention of every ear through the fifteen minutes or more that it occupied. He dealt largely with the moral results of a university education. In the case of Columbian he said that though its beginnings were small the end must certainly be very great. He then went on to show how theology is one of the learned professions of the world, as much as any other branch of work, and how it requires just as much of a training. He gave a beautiful definition of philosophy as "the vast void of human conjecture, about which men have been beating for ages in search of truth." Every man is in some sense a theologian, and he must have Rev. Dr. Grammer of the Episcopal Church of jecture, about which men have been beating for ages in search of truth." Every man is in some sense a theologian, and he must have some religion. There is no range of human experience that is not touched by theology. The value of a true theology is enriched by a sound learning. It is a valuable sign of the times that rich men, merchants and those in other walks of life, have given large sums for the endowment of institutions of learning in order to produce better theologies. Columbian University, he added, has done one thing worthy of its life, in that it has inspired men to higher motives in study. He then went on to differentiate the various reasons why men study, showing the futility of all but that which has for its end the enlightenment of the world rather than the advantage of self. His address was lightened by touches of personal reminiscences that put the table in a roar of laughter, and when he had concluded he was applauded until he was forced to rise and bow his acknowledgements.

President Warner read a postal card that had been received from Dr. G. W. Sampson, who was president of the university from 1859 to 1871.

COMMERCE AND CURRENCY.

Harrison Writes About Farm Products and Money. The following is the letter sent by President Harrison to the western states congress at Kansas City, spoken of in yesterday's STAB: EXECUTIVE MANSION. Washington, D.C., April 7, 1891. To Hon. H. B. Kelly, Chairman, Kansas City,

Dear Sir-I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of March 24, inviting me to attend the meeting of the Commercial Congress of the Western Agricultural and Mining States, to assemble in Kansas City April 14 to 19 for the purpose of considering measures affecting the general agricultural and business prosperity of the Mississippi valley states. I duce to the consumer out of his farm wagon his independence and his profits would be larger and surer. It seems to me quite possible to attain a largely increased market for our staple farm products without impairing the home market by opening the manufacturing trades to a competition in which foreign producers paying a lower scale of wages would have the advantage. A policy that would reduce the number of our people engaged in mechanical pursuits, or diminish their ability to purchase food products by reducing wages, cannot be helpful to those now engaged in agriculture. The farmers insist that the prices of farm products have been too low—below the point of fair living and fair profits. I think so, too, but I venture to remind them that the plea they make involves the concession that side by side with those of other institutions, and it has been found that in no way do they fail or fall below the others. It should be the duty of the city to bring about a union of the higher grades of the public school system with the lower grades of Columbia University.

for me in this letter to enter upon any elabo rate discussion of these questions. One or two things I will say, and first, I believe that every person who thoroughly considers the question will agree with me upon a proposition which is at the base of all my consideration of the currency question, namely: that any dollar—paper or coin—that is issued by the United States must be made and kept in its commercial uses as good as any other dollar. So long as any paper money issued or authorized by the United States government is accepted in commercial uses a the conjugant of the best-coined Fietcher, Weston Fint, Jos. Forrest, Dr. R. A.

Tency question, namely: that any dollar—paper or coin—that is issued by the United States must be made and kept in its commercial uses as good as any other dollar. So long as any paper money issued or authorized by the United States must be made and kept in its commercial uses as good as any other dollar. So long as any paper money issued or authorized by the United States government is accepted in commercial use as the equivalent of the best-coined dollar that we issue, and so long as every coined dollar, whether of silver or gold, is as-

But, on the other hand, when any issue of paper or coined dollar is in buying and selling rated at a less value than other paper or coined dollar we have passed the limit of safe experiment in finance. If we have dollars of different values only the poorest will circulate. The farmer and the laborer who are not in hourly touch with the ticker or the telegraph will redollar of full value. Fluctuations and depreciations are always at the first cost of these classes of our community. The banker and the speculator anticipate discount, and often profit by such fluctuations. It is very easy under the impulse of excitement or the stress of money stringency to fall into the slough of a depreciated or irredeemable currency. It is a very painful and slow business to get out when once in.

Senator Call Secures All but Four Votes
Needed for the Nomination.

From 8 o'clock last night till after 11 the Florida joint democratic caucus debated the merits of the two-third and majority rules, and then, upon a roll-call being ordered on a substitute motion of Monday night to adopt the twothird rule the vote stood 56 to 40 and the twothird rule was adopted. Many of Call's supporters were unwilling to place him in nomination on a majority rule and therefore voted with the opposition. The Call men assisted in making the vote unanimous, and then Call's name was formally placed in nomination by Hon. Frank Clark, representative from Polk
